

An Explanation and a Home

Chuck Wants Vietnam Duty

Marine Capt. Charles S. Robb said yesterday after getting the $2 marriage license that following the wedding Saturday to Lynda Bird Johnson and a few months of home-life in a house in Arlington the couple just rented from a friend, he hopes to go to Vietnam.

He wants to go in March, the date he's tentatively scheduled to report to Camp Pendleton, Calif., and wait for overseas' orders.

He revealed yesterday that he's been trying to get to Vietnam since 1962. "When I left the Northampton, which was my tour of sea duty in 1962, I requested an assignment then to the Third Marine Division or any expeditionary duty, which was the only duty available at that particular time," he said.

In a "yes ma'm" and "no ma'm" interview arranged by Mrs. Johnson's press secretary, Liz Carpenter, the tall, handsome bridegroom-to-be explained to Scripps-Howard staff writer Wauhila La Hay why he wanted duty in the war zone.

"First of all, I'm a Marine officer," he said. "This is our stock-in-trade. I felt I had an obligation then as I do now to do the thing that basically we are all trained for."

This is the house at 3556 N. Valley-st, Arlington.

Until he leaves, however, the couple will make their home in a split-level brick house at 3556 Valley-st, a quiet dead-end street in fashionable Country Club Hills. They rented it from Thomas S. Whipple, a Central Intelligence Agency employee currently stationed overseas.

The house, nestled in a grove of trees, has a screened porch, double garage with what appears to be living quarters over it, and a curving flagstone walk that leads up to the front door past a huge evergreen tree and a vine-covered lamp post.